

Sophie Jennings—Heritage Consultant, Archaeologist

Sophie Jennings, GML Heritage Consultant and Archaeologist, holds a Bachelor of Arts majoring in Archaeology from the University of Sydney, with Honours in Archaeology from the University of Western Australia. She has nine years experience working in the heritage sector, and has undertaken archaeological projects in both Australia and England.

Prior to joining GML, Sophie worked for several years in London, gaining experience in undertaking archaeological impact assessments for major commercial, industrial and residential developments across the city and southeast England. This experience gave her skills in field archaeology on a range of urban and rural excavations dating from the Bronze Age through to the Tudor period.

Sophie is also skilled in Aboriginal archaeology, having worked in Western Australia and NSW on survey, planning and excavation projects. Sophie has experience in Aboriginal community liaison and stakeholder communication.
